

ABSTRACT

A method and system of operating an electromagnetic resistivity tool wherein at least one transmitting antenna of the tool is selectively operable at three or more resonant frequencies for better resistivity profiling of a formation.